Further update of the AVR and technical implementation aspects

Martina Mandac

Summary break-out session 2

- Main topics were activities regarding AVR in 2019. and the lessons learnt
- Presentations on changes in AVR, experience of FAR verification and accreditation, improving verifier´s competence and capacity in countries, familiarity risk
- Active discussions regarding FAR exercise from different points of view (CA, NABs , verifiers and operators)
- Main conclusion: the complexity of FAR rules and time pressure made it a chalange for all parties involved

Conclusions break-out session 2

- There are opportunities to improve (e.g. for the verification of the annual activity level report)
- It is important to involve experts from all parties at an early stage in the process
- Training is an important tool to improve the competence of the verifier (e.g. Commission training, sharing experiences between countries)
- Rotation would be a good instrument to increase the competence over time within the verification body and to address familiarity risk

Conclusions break-out session 2

- Current capacity of verifiers limits this opportunity
- Cross border verification could help in increasing the capacity and competence of verifiers but there are language, cultural, legal and costs challenges
- Direct communication between verifiers, NABs and CAs is useful to improve the AV system
- COM guidance needs to be reviewed: e.g. improvement needed on KGN II.4 on data sampling
